A PEACEFUL END.

[illegible]

York, Pa., Aug. 28.—[Special.]—At fifteen minutes past 2 this morning Judge Jeremiah Black breathed his last. His death was as quiet and peaceful as the setting of a summer's sun. His two sons, Chauncey F. and Henry Lee Black, his daughter, Mrs. Eugene Wilson, and A. K. Parshall were present when he died.

Just before the death he spoke with each member of the family, saying to his son Chauncey that he had no fear of crossing the dark river, adding: "I would like to have a comfortable place when I leave here." He spoke of Commerce and gave counsel to his son, and to the widow of S. Wilson Black and also to his wife in Christ. He was anxious for rest. "I would not have you think that I am a coward, but I fear to cross this river. I have taken such an interest in my fellow-men here, and therefore dread but to leave them."

LAST WORDS.

When his beloved wife knelt at the bedside, overcome with grief and tears, he gave utterance to the following prayer:

"O, Thou beloved and most merciful Father, from whom I and my wife, and to whom I have ever trusted, grant, if it be Thy will, that I and [illegible] suffer pain, agony, and fear. I am weakly relied down to Thee, and to my God, Thine and comfort this our [illegible]."

[illegible]

The Judge's funeral will take from the late residence and private chapel on the corner of Philadelphia and Beaver streets, at 10 o'clock on next Wednesday morning. Rev. Dr. [illegible] will officiate. The remains will be interred in Prospect Hill Cemetery, York, Pa.

[illegible]

[illegible] Judge Black was a member of the Christian or Campbellite Church, and an old friend of the late Alexander Campbell, the founder of that sect. Judge Black was a warm friend of Alexander Campbell, and the latter will probably be there to-day. Many distinguished people are expected to be present. The deceased Jurist's youngest daughter, Mrs. Wilson, resides in Washington, D. C., and her husband, Hon. [illegible], is a member of the United States Congress from [illegible] district.

[illegible]

The accompanying from Judge Black was given out by the family of the deceased statesman just before the funeral services began. It was written by Judge Black on the 4th of July, 1892: "I would like to have an unobtrusive place when I leave behind to this world

Commissioner Taylor Resigns on Account of Dave Clark's Opposition.

He Regards Clark as a Professional Machine Politician,

And His Appointment as a Slap in the Municipal Mug.

Some of the improvements of Gen. Sheridan do not seem to meet with universal approval, and this is especially true of the action of Dave Clark, in the granting of West Park, Chicago Avenue, and Douglas Park franchises. Commissioner Taylor, who was appointed by Gen. Sheridan, and who is a member of the West Park Commission, and one of the three commissioners who have charge of the matter, protests against the indorsement of a majority of the Board of Commissioners of Public Works, and says that Clark is not entitled to the franchises, and that he protested against their being granted to him. Clark, on the other hand, claims that he has been assured by Commissioner Taylor that he would not oppose the granting of the franchises, and that Taylor had said that he would withdraw his opposition to them. The matter will be settled by the Board of Commissioners of Public Works, which meets this afternoon, when Taylor will present his protest against the granting of the franchises to Clark. The Council will then act upon the matter, and it is thought that the franchises will be granted.

Commissioner Taylor, in speaking of the matter, said: "I have resigned my position as commissioner of the West Park Board, and have sent a letter to Gen. Sheridan to that effect. I have done this because I am opposed to the granting of the franchises to Dave Clark, and I do not wish to be connected with the granting of them. I have protested against the granting of the franchises to
